IMPORTANT DEFINITIONS/INFORMATION

What is the Construction Industry Portable Sick Leave (PSL) Insurance?

The PSL program has been set up to take over the sick days workers would normally lose when they leave or are terminated by a B Class member (employer).

How does PSL work?

CIPL has purchased an Insurance Policy to cover any unused sick leave a worker has remaining at the time of termination of employment and where the employer member is paying the premium contribution to CIPL.

All employers are responsible for their employee's statutory sick leave. See fairwork.gov.au for more information.

On termination of employment, an employer is required to send to CIPL the number of sick leave days a worker has taken at the time of a workers termination. It is important that the employer completes the CIPL Employee Termination Form or adds the information via their online contribution.

CIPL cannot take over any unused sick leave for any period where an employer has not paid and is not paying the premium contributions on behalf of a worker.

Portable Sick Leave

A. Important Definitions / Information Cont.

Worker

Means a building or construction industry employee (being either a manual or non manual employee: non manual does not perform any manual physical work, within their occupation and spends at least 50% of their working time in an office environment) or related employee who:

- (a)
 - accrues sick leave,
 - is not a casual worker; and
 - is not a director, self-employed as a sole trader, company secretary, member shareholder or officer of a Pty Ltd company; and
 - is currently obtaining a salary and actively working full time for a B class member whose insurance premium contributions are current or currently payable and not in arrears at the time of disablement;

or

- (b)
 - was previously a permanent employee for a B class member; and
 - is currently a casual worker for a B class member whose insurance premium contributions are current or currently payable and not in arrears at the time of disablement.

Casual Worker

Means a non permanent employee, who is not guaranteed work, and not entitled to sick or annual leave. A casual worker receives an "all inclusive rate" of pay.

Workers returning to their previous employer

If a worker has contributions made to the CIPL program by their employer and is then terminated by that employer, the workers days are added to the program.

If the worker then returns to work for that same employer within 6 months of the date they left that employer, the days are reversed out of the program to the employer who again assumes liability for those days unless the worker is employed with a different employer during that six month period. If this is the case, the PSL days continue to stay with the PSL program.

When does cover cease?

- If your premium contributions are not current at the time of your injury/illness. Any gaps in the premium contributions will mean no cover for the period and you will not accumulate PSL days
- If you are unemployed
- If you commence working for an employer who does not participate in CIPL's Accident and Illness/WorkCover Top-Up and Portable Sick Leave Program.
- If the injury/illness gives rise to statutory worker's compensation.
- If you do not follow medical advice and treatment or make reasonable efforts to actively participate in occupational rehabilitation, assessments, return to work plans or future employment prospects.

When we will not pay

- If the injury/illness is work related.
- If the worker does not follow medical advice or treatment, or does not actively participate in occupational rehabilitation, assessments, return to work plans or future employment prospects.
- The Policy does not provide benefits or entitlements to a worker when they are serving a prison sentence, remanded in custody or whilst outside of Australia.

Portable Sick Leave

B. Sick Leave Benefits - Injury or Illness

Provides cover to workers only, where a worker suffers an injury or illness in their leisure time and prevents a worker from working - the injury or illness must:

- Occur during the period of insurance; and
- Occur outside working hours and when the worker is not engaged in any work whatsoever for remuneration; and
- Not give rise to any entitlement to compensation under any statutory workers compensation scheme

Sick leave benefits are payable whilst a worker continues to suffer disablement for the number of days accrued and recorded through the PSL program.

Sick Leave Benefits

Sick leave benefits are calculated based on the worker's pre-disability earnings

If the worker is a permanent employee: the calculation is made using the worker's gross hourly rate times (x) base hours worked at the time of injury or illness

If the worker is currently a casual worker: the calculation is made using the worker's gross base hourly rate at the time of injury or illness (excluding all allowances and loadings) x 8 hours per day up to a maximum of 40 hours per week

 Tax will be withheld from the gross weekly benefits by QBE as per ATO guidelines

Regardless of how many days you accumulate, the maximum number of days that can be held and paid under the PSL program is 100 days and once this is paid out/exhausted you will begin to accrue from a nil (0) balance

Unused days will lapse when the worker has not been employed and no PSL contributions have been paid for a continuous period of two (2) years or when the worker permanently leaves the building and construction industry.

A worker cannot exhaust any sick leave days accumulated when the worker is on annual leave, bereavement leave, jury leave, maternity leave, paternity leave, parental leave, carer's leave or any other special leave.

A claim will only be considered once the worker has taken all available accrued sick leave entitlements with their current employer. A worker may elect to hold 15 sick days with their current employer before claiming PSL days.
